

WEDNESDAY
DECEMBER 19, 2007
HOUSTON CHRONICLE

KAREN WARREN PHOTOS: CHRONICLE

PREPARING THE PULP: Jody Kahn, a resident of Willow River Farms in San Felipe, moves a screen with wet paper pulp, which will be used to make ornaments for cookie tins. The cookies are sold to benefit the mental health facility residents.

HAVE ONE: Peter Hobi, owner of the Alphorn bakery, displays finished cookies that are ready to be sent to Gingersnaps, Etc.

It's a snap

GINGERSNAPS, Etc. is a volunteer group that makes and sells cookies to benefit the 700 children and adults aided by The Center Serving Persons with Mental Retardation. Cookie tins are decorated with paper ornaments made by residents of Willow River Farms in San Felipe, which is run by the center.

VIDEO: Get an inside look at the process at chron.com/metro